

Values @ home

Our final value for the year is responsibility. As we head towards the summer it is a chance for us to discuss responsibility both at home and further afield. We talk to the children a lot about the importance of taking responsibility: responsibility for their work, for their behaviour, for their relationships and for the world around them. If children are given ownership and opportunities to demonstrate this value then this helps them to become more independent and to develop new skills.

Moving On

As your child moves on to their new class next year, it is a great time to establish responsibilities for a morning routine.

Discuss over the holidays what your child will be in charge of doing each morning now that they are a year older!!! It can help to draw pictures or take photos of each job and to stick them up somewhere in the correct order. to help your child follow the routine.

Have a lovely break. We'd love to hear about any ways your family uses values over the summer!

Responsibility Craft

Celebrate this month's value at home by making a craft to show what everyone's responsibilities are!!!

Make a picture or model of each member of the family - you could draw or stick a photo of their face on each one. Then dangle a string below and attach their responsibilities. Try and have the same number for each person to show how everyone contributes! They can be changed as your child gets older and has different and new responsibilities!

You could attach arms and legs to plastic cup or even make a split pin person for each family member!
